ADAMS INSTALS PUMPING PLANT

Farmer Near Berino Is Demonstrating That Bench Lands Are Adapted to Fruit Culture.

Berino, N. M., April 17. — R. C.
Adams has completed the instalation of the largestt power pumping plant on the bench lands in the upper valley. The plant is on his homestead, midway between Berino and Anthony. He first put down a shaft 40 feet, to first water. It is timbered with two-inch red cedar. From here down to 35 feet deep, is an eight-inch casing with a 12-foot strainer. A three and one half-inch Advance centrifugal pump is installed at the bottom of shaft. The water from the lower strata rises three feet above the pump. Power is developed with a 12 horsepower Stover crude oil engine. The machinery was installed by an El Paso firm.

The first irrigation by the plant was done this week. It is throwing about 100 gallons per minute and is increasing as the sand is pumped away from the strainer. Amalysis show only 164 parts sollds to 190,000 gallons of water, and no injurious salta.

Mr. Adams has set out 750 fruit trees.

the strainer. Amalysis show enly 184 parts solids to 100,000 gallons of water, and no injurious salts.

Mr. Adams has set out 750 fruit trees, one-fourth 'apple and the balance peaches. The apples as permanent trees, are 26 feet apart and the peaches midway between, as fillers. They are to be cut out on interference with the apples. The varieties planted are Kincald's Choice, and Grimes's goiden apples and Belle of Georgia, Chair's Choice and Matthew's beauty peaches. Watermelons and vegetables will be grown between the trees.

This land is a sandy loam and has a depth of 20 feet, hedding moisture in fine shape and is about 35 feet above the river level. Mr. Adam's place comes under the survey of the hirh line canal and he says that by the time the government is ready to give him water he wants to have 48 acres in an orchard ready for the water.

Some people seem to think the planting of the bench lands is more or less an experiment. Mr. Adams says that it is a demonstrated fact to the contrary. Last year, from 25 peach trees on his place and irrigated from a windmill, he sold to his neighbors who came to his ranch $85 worth of fruit.

Adams's ranch is only one-half mile east of Camino real and three miles north of Anthony.

CONTRACTORS WILL NOT PAY THE PRICE

The contractors are agreed to pay the wage to the men whom they consider worth this much.

MAN ACQUITTED IN OLEO CASE BY JURY OLEO CASE BY JURY
Oleomargarine is used by the best families in El Paso. This fact was developed in the "oleo" trial in the federal court Wednesday afternoon, in which G. H. Muensch was found not guilty of failing to properly mark the imitation butter.

A number of prominent El Paso women were summoned as witnesses in the case, having bought the imitation butter from pheir dealers. The inspectors of the revenue department also testiter from their dealers. The inspectors of the revenue department also testie fled that the dealer had sold practically all of the downtown restaurants packages of from five to 15 pounds of oleo. Mar Chew, the Chinese restauranteur, took the stand and testified that it was "good buttah" and that it satisfied his customers.

The jury was out only a short time when it returned the verdict of "not guilty."
